

Reception Blended Learning Curriculum

Remote learning will be planned for the academic year 2020-21. Remote learning will be provided in cases where schools are instructed to close or individual students are having to self-isolate.

The ATLP will use where possible lessons from the Oaks National Academy to provide students with appropriate remote learning, The Oaks programme for learning for each subjects has been reviewed and matched to our ATLP primary knowledge engaged curriculum.

In cases of whole school closure or whole classes having to isolate, students will be directed to the series of Oaks lessons below that aligns best with the long term plan for a subject, or schools might look to supplement these with recorded lessons. In cases of individual students having to self-isolate, teachers need to identify the lesson(s) to be taught in class Using the menu of Oaks lessons below, the lesson(s) that most appropriately match the content that is to be delivered in class will be selected. The link to this lesson can then be provided to the student[s] so that they can access and follow the lesson in-line with the timetable of lessons set by the school for that student[s].

English Oak Curriculum

We know that learning in the EYFS is driven by a combination of adult-led sessions and facilitation of learning as part of continuous provision. Our ability to do the latter is limited by the online nature of the resources but we endeavour to present videos that provide options for further independent learning and high quality play. We know that the division of learning into subjects can sit contrary to the EYFS framework, in which one task can engage the child in developing in multiple areas. Although, given the nature of this project, our Literacy provision may initially seem 'stand alone', it will heavily integrate other areas including Understanding the World, Physical, Social and Emotional, Communication and Language and Expressive Arts and Design. 'Playing and exploring, 'active learning' and 'creating and thinking critically' will drive the way children learn in Literacy. Literacy in EYFS aims to build solid foundations in the key areas of communication and language, reading and writing through engagement with stories. Stories will provide meaningful context and purpose for all learning.

Maths Oak Curriculum

<https://teachers.thenational.academy/subjects/maths/key-stages/early-years-foundation-stage>

We strive to support schools by offering a maths curriculum that can fit alongside a range of existing structures. However, complete flexibility over unit ordering is impossible due to the cumulative nature of mathematics and the importance of prior knowledge.

We have grouped lessons into units: coherent sequences of 5 or more lessons. Although each lesson can be accessed individually, explicit connections are made to earlier lessons and later lessons in the same unit. This is because the connections between mathematical concepts are so vital to deepening understanding.

Knowledge organisation

The units in the maths curriculum are grouped as appropriate for each key stage, with a suggested route organised within year groups.

Music Curriculum

<https://teachers.thenational.academy/subjects/music/key-stages/key-stage-2>

In the EYFS and primary curricula, the voice is at the heart of musical learning. For us, musical learning begins with the voice, and throughout our curriculum pupils develop their musicianship through singing activities that offer increasing levels of challenge and complexity.

Units include music from a range of musical periods, genres, styles and traditions and this facilitating knowledge helps us to introduce, build and deepen musical understanding (knowledge and skills).

RHE/PSHE Curriculum

<https://teachers.thenational.academy/subjects/rhe-pshe/key-stages/early-years-foundation-stage>

The RHE curriculum is interdisciplinary and versatile where key literacy and numeracy skills are interwoven into all planning. It ensures that irrespective of the order of units, pupils will develop subject specific knowledge and skills as they work through the content. The delivery of the lessons and units proposed in this programme will support pupils as they transition back into school life following a prolonged period out of school in the first half of 2020. These units cover all of KS2

The curriculum for RHE is organised by themes and topics. These include:

- Physical Health
- Mental Wellbeing
- Growing and Changing
- Keeping Safe;
- Families and Friendships
- Safe Relationships
- Respecting Ourselves and Others

Understanding the World

<https://teachers.thenational.academy/subjects/understanding-the-world/key-stages/early-years-foundation-stage>

We know that the division of learning into subjects can sit contrary to the EYFS framework, in which one task can engage the child in developing in multiple areas. We are, however, going to organise the Reception learning by the specific areas of Literacy, Maths and Understanding the World, knowing that Physical, Social and Emotional and Communication and Language are developed across all these areas and embedded in all our lessons. Expressive Arts and Design will regularly be part of our learning around Understanding the World, as well as being present in Literacy. Although these areas will be experienced and practiced in a thematic manner by pupils, they will be explicitly planned for and modelled during instruction.

Knowledge organisation

The units for Understanding the World are arranged under an overarching topic, within these there will be weekly units: these will include aspects of People and Communities and The World. We have taken account of the calendar to recognise and teach knowledge around key events, aligning with common practice in EYFS settings, the time specific requirements of these units means they largely stand alone.
